INTRODUCTION

This Background and Action Plan document aims to identify the key actions and interventions that the council will seek to facilitate and influence to deliver the aims and objectives identified within the Heritage Strategy for the borough. This document should be read in conjunction with the new Heritage Strategy 2018 - 2023.

This document highlights the council's vision for the borough's heritage, provides a national and local background and context, summarises key issues and challenges for the heritage sector and service delivery (in the form of a strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats analysis) before setting out detailed actions and initiatives to achieve the aims and objectives of the strategy.

Views from national and local heritage organisations, relevant stakeholders, borough residents, borough council members and departments informed the drafting of both documents. It is the intention that the Heritage Strategy and supporting Background and Action Plan will be endorsed by the council and be in place for the next five years to guide the work of the council's heritage resource.

THE VISION

- To increase our understanding and awareness of the borough's heritage with increased accessibility to the historic environment
- To implement positive action and active management of the borough's heritage to ensure its conservation and enhancement
- To enable an approach of partnership and collaboration where people, groups and communities come together to care for the borough's heritage
- To celebrate and promote the borough's heritage and identity, allowing it to make a difference for people, groups and communities

BACKGROUND AND CONTEXT

What is heritage?

The scope of heritage is very wide and can mean a variety of things to different people and organisations. As part of the public consultation exercise to inform the document the question “What is heritage?” was asked, which generated a breadth of responses (summarised in Appendix 1). Common themes emerged, and included the historic and natural environments, buildings, structures and spaces, places, natural and designed landscapes, archaeology, historical records, objects and collections, culture and tradition, people, communities and groups, and stories and experiences. These themes fit nicely into definitions used in the heritage sector, which includes the English Heritage (as then) definition of heritage as “all inherited resources which people value for reasons beyond mere utility” (Conservation Principles, 2008).

The heritage of Hinckley and Bosworth

The Borough of Hinckley and Bosworth has a rich, varied and unique history. The evolution of the borough continues to be relevant to people living within and outside of the borough and its history and heritage acts to shape people’s lives and the landscape around them. As part of the public consultation exercise the question “What is the heritage of the borough?” was asked. Again this generated a range of responses (see Appendix 1) with common elements being identified. It is considered that the heritage of the borough includes and can be attributed to the following (this is not an exhaustive list):

- A long history of human settlement in the area with a fine archaeological resource providing information about past activity (dating as far back as the Palaeolithic Period with sites recorded on the Historic Environment Record). This resource is both below and above ground with many sites helping people learn about past events. One such event is the Battle of Bosworth, which is internationally renowned.
- The geology of the borough has had a defining influence on settlement distribution, form and land use. Many settlements established during Anglo-Saxon, Norman and the Medieval periods are located on ridge tops and then developed around agriculture, with the predominantly clay soils of the borough allowing a range of arable and pastoral practices to take place. The borough remains predominantly rural. Mineral extraction, from the quarrying of granites and slates in the Charnwood Forest, the mining of coal from the Leicestershire Coalfield and the digging of clay pits for the production of bricks has marked the landscape.
- The hosiery industry, introduced as a domestic industry in a number of the borough’s settlements during the 17th century, then developed on an industrial scale during the 19th century which led to associated urban expansion and the establishment of associated industries including the production of boots and shoes.
- Transport routes and infrastructure constructed largely as a result of the development of the borough’s industries and to transport goods, including the Ashby Canal and the Leicester to Swannington and Ashby to Nuneaton railway lines. Some have found new uses as tourism and recreational assets and remain an indelible feature of the landscape. Sites within the borough have been heavily involved with the development of motor transport, including the Hansom Cab, Triumph Motorcycles and more recently MIRA Technology Park.

- A diverse range of high quality public and private buildings and spaces, ranging from Medieval market places (Hinckley market was established in 1311), commercial and civic buildings constructed as a source of pride and prosperity, and fine public parks and green spaces maintain a legacy of commercial activity and leisure.
- Fine historic churches and places of worship are located throughout the borough and many settlements have high quality structures and spaces for commemoration, contemplation and reflection. The borough was a focal point for the formation of a number of non-conformist movements including Baptism and Methodism and independent religions such as the Quakers.
- The natural landscape of the borough offers a wide range of biodiversity, flora and fauna, alongside human influences which have created high quality semi-natural landscapes, such as Burbage Common and Woods, the remnant parklands of Gopsall and Bosworth, the creation of Thornton Reservoir and more recent initiatives as part of the National Forest.
- People (individuals, groups and communities) have shaped the heritage of the borough, harnessed over time as cultural traditions, recorded memories and stories, literature, collected objects, archives and artefacts, and demonstrations of skills and innovation. Cultural heritage can often be intangible.

Planning for our heritage

Local planning authorities already have various statutory duties under heritage legislation but have also recently been tasked to set out (in their Local Plan) a positive strategy for the conservation and enjoyment of the historic environment, including heritage assets most at risk through neglect, decay or other threats. In doing so, they should recognise that heritage assets are an irreplaceable resource and conserve them in a manner appropriate to their significance. The presumption is to deliver sustainable development and conserving and harnessing heritage should play an important part in this process.

This process also needs to reflect changing attitudes and perspectives. Conservation planning used to be seen as seeking to preserve sites “in an unaltered state” or “in aspic” but now the focus is changing to a more positive and integrated approach where heritage is seen as an asset rather than a constraint and where conservation refers to the active and informed management of change in a way that sustains and where appropriate enhances the significance of heritage assets.

The value of heritage

The value of the historic environment is enshrined in national government policy and legislation, articulated by local government policy and practice, supported by national and local amenity groups and expressed in the popularity of heritage in the public mind. The case for heritage providing key economic, social and environmental benefits is now well evidenced via sources such as Heritage Counts, the annual audit of England’s heritage produced by Historic England. Consequently, the historic environment is a valuable asset which can contribute to broader strategic objectives such as economic development, urban and rural regeneration, tourism, leisure and recreation, community development, good urban design and town planning, provision of formal and informal education, development of skills, and achieving sustainable development, as demonstrated in the diagram overleaf.

Economic development and tourism Historic places, buildings, events and activities and a high quality environment, old and new, is a prerequisite to maximising economic development potential, projecting a positive image, attracting investment, jobs and tourism
Regeneration Historic buildings and areas are key elements in the regeneration of urban and rural areas, transforming them into thriving sustainable communities and creating places where people want to live, work and visit
Intrinsic and economic value The historic environment and places have intrinsic value in their own right as the fabric of human achievement. The historic environment is an attractive proposition, and historic properties and those with original features deliver consistently higher yields and values than other buildings
Leisure and recreation The historic environment is the embodiment of culture and it often accommodates a range of activities, buildings, sites and landscapes that provide a focus for exploration, visits, leisure and recreation
Local distinctiveness, pride and communities Investment in historic places and increasing understanding of the historic environment helps to support local communities, preserve local distinctiveness and identity, reinforce a sense of place, and foster local pride
Urban design quality The historic environment often provides demonstrably superior urban design, legible townscapes, mixed use, greater variety of urban forms and quality public realm. It can create a context and stimulus for creative and innovative design
Skills and education The historic environment, archives and collections, people and their knowledge and experiences provide a tangible resource for research and teaching across all ages, creating a better understanding of our past and today's society and in practice creates more skilled employment in craft-based industries
Sustainable use of resources The practices of conservation and refurbishment are environmentally friendly and an intrinsically sustainable form of development, avoiding the use and waste of scarce resources associated with demolition and redevelopment

The scope of the strategy

As demonstrated by the public consultation exercise the scope of heritage within the borough is very wide, however the ownership and management responsibilities for heritage assets are often complex and shared amongst many bodies, organisations and individuals. Therefore the emphasis of the heritage strategy will be on the heritage where the council and its partners have a direct role and responsibility and some influence in the decision making or management process. The document will also seek to positively include or make reference to private and voluntary sector owned or influenced heritage and heritage related activities and highlight the council's role in encouraging and supporting these.

The document also plays a complimentary role in informing and managing the aspects of Hinckley and Bosworth's cultural and natural heritage that contribute to the borough's historic environment as they are predominantly covered and appropriately managed via other national and local strategies and policies. Reference will be made to these where relevant.

The national context

Legislation

Local planning authorities derive their duties, responsibilities and powers in relation to the historic environment principally from the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. In delivering these functions the council must have special regard to preserving a listed building or its setting or any features of special architectural or historic interest it possesses, provide advice on appeals, determine listed building consents, issue enforcement notices where appropriate, and offer grants for building repair and maintenance to prevent deterioration. For conservation areas the council must pay special attention to preserving and enhancing these areas when considering development proposals, determine worthy areas and designate them as conservation areas, formulate proposals for their preservation and enhancement, control demolition, and offer grants for the preservation and enhancement of conservation areas.

Additional responsibilities and powers for local planning authorities and public bodies are included within the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979, Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, the Growth and Infrastructure Act 2013 and the Enterprise and the Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Act 2013.

National Planning Policy Framework and Planning Practice Guidance

The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) (2012) sets out the Government's planning policies and states how the planning system should deliver sustainable development which satisfies three mutually dependant economic, social and environmental roles. One of the NPPF's 12 core principles is to conserve heritage assets in a manner appropriate to their significance, so that they can be enjoyed for their contribution to the quality of life of this and future generations.

A heritage asset is defined in the NPPF as "a building, monument, site, place, area or landscape as having a degree of significance meriting consideration in planning decisions, because of its heritage interest' and includes those designated at the national and local level.

It is recognised that heritage assets are irreplaceable resources whose significance should be identified, assessed and considered in determining any planning application. The different types of heritage asset, potential harm, securing its optimum viable use and public benefits should be weighed to produce a balanced judgement. Local planning authorities should also look for opportunities to better reveal the significance of heritage assets and take account of the desirability of sustaining and enhancing the significance of heritage assets whilst putting them to viable uses consistent with their conservation, the positive contribution that heritage assets can make to sustainable communities including their economic vitality, and the desirability of new development making a positive contribution to local character and distinctiveness. Reference is also made to the importance of having an up-to-date historic environment evidence base and maintaining or having access to such a record.

The Government's Planning Practice Guidance (PPG) provides information on the practical application of the NPPF and includes guidance on conserving and enhancing the historic environment.

National heritage "stakeholder" organisations

Historic England is the execute non-departmental body sponsored by the Department of Culture Media and Sport (DCMS) to look after England's historic environment by championing historic places, identifying and protecting heritage, supporting change, understanding historic places and providing expertise at the local level. National Amenity Societies also provide knowledge and expertise on particular aspects of the historic environment and they are a statutory consultee on relevant planning and listed building applications. The societies are listed in Appendix 2.

Different bodies have different responsibilities and remits for the historic environment. The DCMS are responsible for statutory listing and scheduled monuments with the guidance of Historic England. Local planning authorities are responsible for designating and reviewing conservation areas, local listing, and determining planning applications that affect all heritage assets although Historic England is also a statutory consultee in some cases. Expertise for archaeology and the management of the Historic Environment Record (HER) lies with Leicestershire County Council.

Practical and professional advice on specific elements of the historic environment is also provided by a wide range of organisations and professional associations and institutes. In addition a great number of organisations from across the historic environment sector are working together as part of the Heritage 2020 Framework as an initiative to strengthen partnership and collaborative working in order to sustain and promote the historic environment of England.

The local context

Hinckley and Bosworth has a number of historic towns and villages set within a diverse landscape. The borough's attractive environment, geographic location at the centre of the country, being close to the major urban centres of Leicester, Coventry and Birmingham and served by an extensive transport network, makes it a highly desirable place to live and work.

This desirability means there is pressure for development with the challenge to ensure any future development will sustain a rich and varied historic environment.

Hinckley and Bosworth's heritage assets include:

340 statutory listed buildings, designated by the DCMS on the advice of Historic England to mark and celebrate a building's special architectural or historic interest. Listed buildings are graded according to their quality and interest and within the borough 8 are listed at grade I, 36 are listed at grade II* and 296 are listed at grade II. There is a wide range of buildings and structures on the list including churches, farm houses and farm buildings, cottages and manor houses, war memorials and commemorative structures, former hosiery industry buildings, public houses, walled gardens, bridges, railings, telephone boxes and village pumps.

A list of local heritage assets is being developed by the council with assistance from local stakeholders. The local heritage list will identify heritage assets that merit protection due to their contribution to local character and distinctiveness but do not meet the criteria to be statutory listed.

28 Conservation Areas

which have been designated as an area of special architectural or historic interest. Such areas include the length of the Ashby Canal within the borough, centres of the hosiery and boot and shoe industries, historic town and village centres, and areas around historic parks.

The market place at the centre of Market Bosworth Conservation Area

Remains of the motte and bailey castle in Hinckley, a scheduled monument

22 Scheduled Monuments, designated by the DCMS on the advice of Historic England to recognise the national importance of these archaeological sites. Types of monuments in the borough include Neolithic bowl barrows, an Iron Age hill fort, Roman villas and settlements, Saxon burial mounds, Norman motte and bailey castles, Medieval moats and fishponds, farmsteads, manorial complexes and deserted villages. A great number of local archaeological sites are also recorded on the Historic Environment Record.

1 Registered Battlefield, identified by Historic England to offer protection through the planning system due to its national significance. The Battle of Bosworth in 1485 marked the end of the Plantagenet dynasty as King Richard III was killed in the battle leading to the crowning of Henry Tudor and the ascension of the Tudor dynasty. King Richard III's reinternment took place at Leicester Cathedral in 2015 following the discovery of his remains in a car park, with his cortege procession passing through key locations across the battlefield and through Market Bosworth and associated villages.

Strategic documents

The Heritage Strategy seeks to address conservation and heritage issues more widely across the borough by according with the council's priorities for people, places and prosperity as part of the Corporate Plan 2017 - 2021, and interacting with and supporting the following strategic documents:

- Core Strategy (2009) in respect of providing the vision and spatial strategy for the borough with the objective of enhancing the identity and distinctiveness of the built and natural environment.
- Hinckley Town Centre Area Action Plan (2009) in respect of providing the strategy for the future of the town centre with the objectives of developing new cultural facilities, promoting the town centre as part of wider tourism initiatives and enhancing the historic character of the town centre through heritage-led regeneration.
- Cultural Strategy (2012) in respect of providing the strategy to support the council's cultural offer by acknowledging our heritage and museums and promoting tourism.

- The Bosworth Battlefield Conservation Plan (2013) in respect of providing a framework for landowners and other stakeholders to work towards developing a shared understanding of the battlefield, its values and significance.
- Tourism Strategy (2013) and the North Warwickshire and Hinckley & Bosworth Destination Management Plan 2017-2022 (2017) in respect of increasing the tourism offer in the borough based on its heritage and supporting current and developing new visitor destinations.
- Earl Shilton and Barwell Area Action Plan (2014) in respect of providing the strategy for future development across the two settlements including seeking the regeneration of their historic centres.
- Town Centre's Vision (2015) in respect of providing master plans to guide the regeneration and redevelopment of historic town centre sites across the borough.
- Site Allocations and Development Management Policies Development Plan Document (2016) in respect of providing a framework for development across the borough and the policy base on which to manage change to heritage assets and ensure adequate controls.
- Economic Regeneration Strategy (2017) in respect of providing the strategy for economic regeneration in the borough with the objectives of local investment in places, business and people.

The council and Neighbourhood Planning Forums/Groups have produced supplementary planning and guidance documents to guide the management of the historic environment, including the following:

- Conservation Area Appraisal and Management Plans: for each designated conservation area in the borough there is an accompanying appraisal which defines the significance of the area and a management plan which sets out suggested actions for preservation and enhancement.
- Shopping & Shop Fronts Supplementary Planning Document (2007): this provides supplementary guidance on shop fronts, security and advertisements located in conservation areas.
- Village Design Statements: for the settlements of Burbage and Ratby Village Design Statements have been adopted which sets out design principles for the area
- Neighbourhood Plans: A Neighbourhood Plan can be used to identify what makes an area locally distinctive, influence design and protect the historic and natural environment. A plan for Market Bosworth has been adopted and further plans for other areas within the borough are being developed.

Local heritage "stakeholder" organisations

The borough benefits from a number of highly knowledgeable and committed stakeholder groups who share a passion for local history, heritage and the historic environment. Although complete coverage of the borough is not yet in place, local knowledge is often provided where there is no stakeholder group by the relevant Parish Council. A list of known local heritage groups and societies is included in Appendix 2.

In many cases these groups have produced educational material on their area of interest that is presented in a number of ways including interpretation boards, the installation of blue plaques, information contained in publications and web sites, and publicising heritage on social media.

Hinckley & District Museum has been open to the public since 1995 and hosts a diverse mix of collections, displays and activities that provide an invaluable representation of Hinckley and its environs, the borough, its people and history. These collections are an irreplaceable learning resource for present and future generations and the museum provides opportunities for people to engage with heritage. Extensive collections on the history and culture of the borough are also held in the Leicestershire Records Office and the libraries located throughout the borough contain material on the local history of the area.

There a number of attractions (both physical and natural) located throughout the borough that celebrate its heritage and provide a focus for tourism and recreation. These are managed and maintained by both public authorities and private or charitable organisations, and include the following (this is not an exhaustive list):

- The Battlefield Line steam railway
- Bosworth Battlefield Heritage Centre
- Market Bosworth Hall and Country Park
- Burbage Common and Woods
- Ashby Canal
- Groby Pool
- Thornton Reservoir
- Mallory Park motor racing circuit
- Triumph Motorcycles visitor centre
- Various buildings and sites that opened for public access (via Heritage Open Days weekends etc.)

There is also a Hinckley Business Improvement District (BID) which effectively promotes and develops projects to benefit local businesses in the town centre.

What does the council do?

The council has a full-time Conservation Officer who is based in Planning & Development Services. The main purpose of the officer is to provide specialist support for the council on matters relating to the historic environment and thus fulfilling the statutory duties of its preservation and enhancement. The role has a range of accountabilities including:

- Providing advice to elected members, officers and members of the public on all elements of the historic environment
- Analysing and defining the special interest of the historic environment
- Providing professional advice on statutory applications and assessing impacts
- Preparing applications for funding and assisting with administering council funding streams
- Contributing to and writing plans, planning policies and evidence bases
- Completing building and area surveys and providing repair specifications
- Preparing, reviewing and appraising advice on existing and new designations including conservation areas and local listings
- Providing design analysis

- Engaging with communities and stakeholders

The council currently administers an Environmental Improvement Programme (EIP) which provides funding to deliver schemes that improve the physical environment within conservation areas or historic areas. Since its establishment over 20 years ago the programme has delivered a number of high quality capital schemes either independently or in partnership with other organisations and by providing contributions to the private sector. Council grants are also available for parish and town councils and community groups for capital projects in the historic environment via the Parish Community Initiative Fund and the Hinckley Community Initiative Fund. Other occasional council funding streams do also become available.

Alternative opportunities to obtain funding for the historic environment are provided via organisations including the Arts Council, the Leicester & Leicestershire Enterprise Partnership (LLEP), the Heritage Lottery Fund, and Historic England, however the availability and suitability of funding from such sources does depend on the nature of the particular project and the application process can be very competitive. The council direct individuals and organisations to alternative funding streams but often for the private individual looking to maintain or invest in the historic environment obtaining financial assistance can be challenging.

Case studies showing successful project work:

Below are a number of case studies demonstrating successful heritage work delivered by the council.

1. The Atkins Building, Hinckley

With the aid of funding from East Midlands Development Agency (EMDA) and English Heritage the council purchased the grade II listed former Atkins hosiery factory and it has been redeveloped and converted to provide creative studios, serviced office space, an art gallery, café, and meeting and function rooms. It is currently thriving and a positive example of the constructive conservation of the borough's hosiery manufacturing heritage.

2. Heritage style street name plates and street lights, borough wide

A great number of heritage style street name plates and street lights have been installed within conservation areas and the historic environment across the borough, funded by the Environmental Improvement Programme. The name plate provides the opportunity for each parish to utilise their existing or design an appropriate image that represents their area and to contribute to local distinctiveness. The lights consist of an ornate cast iron lighting column and lantern which complements and enhances each area, being far more aesthetically pleasing than modern lighting equivalents.

3. Blue plaque scheme, borough wide

The council funds and implements a blue plaque scheme to commemorate the link between notable figures of the past and the buildings or sites in which they lived or worked. 20 distinctive plaques have now been erected across the borough. Each unveiling allows for a celebration of the figure's achievements and their legacy.

4. The return of the Hansom Cab, Hinckley

The Hansom Cab was developed and tested by Joseph Hansom in Hinckley and patented in 1834, and went on to become one of the most popular forms of transport during the 1800s. A cab, owned by the council, has been restored and returned to Hinckley town centre streets for the first time in 100 years as part of the Heritage Open Days celebration in September 2017. It is hoped that the cab will soon be on permanent display at the Museum and be out on the streets as part of future events.

SUMMARY OF KEY ISSUES AND CHALLENGES

The current issues and challenges affecting heritage and the delivery of heritage services in Hinckley and Bosworth are identified through a SWOT (strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, threats) analysis below. The analysis takes into account challenges from both the national and local level and includes comments received and gathered during the public consultation exercises. In some cases an issue has multiple components and be demonstrated as both a strength and a weakness, or provide an opportunity or a threat.

STRENGTHS

- Increasing levels of awareness and recognition of the importance of heritage and the historic environment as demonstrated by central and local government
- An established events calendar (including Heritage Open Days) where heritage assets are accessible and open to the public
- A committed Planning Enforcement Team providing an effective tool to control and ensure the pro-active management of the historic environment
- A considerable number of extremely knowledgeable local stakeholders who support heritage and have influence within their community
- An extremely interesting and thriving local Museum with aspirations for future growth
- Council membership of a Conservation Officers Forum for Leicestershire & Rutland which allows for the sharing of best practice in the management of the historic environment
- The council's experience in delivering an exemplar heritage-led regeneration project at the Atkins building

WEAKNESSES

- Constraints on heritage resources can create a focus on short term reactive work
- The need for up-to-date, accurate and accessible information on heritage assets which confirm to all audiences why the asset is of significance and value
- A lack of guidance and advice to assist with the management of the historic environment
- The need for accessible information for interested stakeholders and heritage asset owners on skilled craftsmen operating within the borough
- The need for an expanded Heritage at Risk Register to identify buildings and sites within the historic environment that are most at risk of being lost as a result of neglect, decay or inappropriate development
- Limited sources and amounts of funding available to support heritage projects and deliver enhancements to the historic environment
- Heritage can sometimes be seen as academic, re-active and elitist and it is particularly difficult to engage with certain sections of the community

OPPORTUNITIES

- To use this strategy to identify and agree objectives, priorities and actions to ensure the council deliver effective and efficient management of its heritage and the historic environment
- To increase the number and types of heritage assets that are accessible and open to a wide range of people
- To support and develop means of training and learning to develop heritage skills and knowledge to those who need it
- To have a shared understanding of local character and distinctiveness and provide protection and management through appropriate means
- To explore and grasp funding opportunities to deliver heritage projects, heritage-led regeneration and enhancements to the public realm (with improved connectivity between key and strategic sites)

- Use voluntary sector expertise and resources to assist the council in delivery of projects and services
- Develop and expand partnership working with existing and new stakeholders
- To improve and provide effective engagement with local communities through different and innovative methods of communication
- Build on the existing and explore the potential of expanding the borough's heritage-led tourism offer
- To celebrate and promote achievement and best practice for exemplar projects within the historic environment that positively influences others

THREATS

- The potential conflict between development pressure and ensuring the significance of the historic environment is preserved and enhanced
- A continued shortage of skilled quality craftspeople which has the effect of increasing the cost of conservation works or reducing the quality of works
- An inability to effectively address Heritage at Risk through management techniques leading to the threat of heritage being lost as a result of neglect, decay or inappropriate development
- Continued limitations on available funding for maintenance and improvements to public and privately owned heritage assets which can perpetuate a lack of investment
- Loss of staff or resource at key stakeholder organisations which includes accumulated knowledge
- Ensure that proposals for the voluntary sector to assist in the delivery of the council's heritage services are realistic, appropriate, rewarding for participants and that there is not an overreliance on this sector

KEY AIMS, OBJECTIVES AND ASSOCIATED ACTIONS

Four key aims with a number of objectives have been devised to address the identified issues and challenges and deliver the vision of the strategy. The Action Plan identifies actions and initiatives to achieve each objective, to be developed and delivered over the next five years.

Many of the objectives are complimentary and ensure that the aims of the document will be achieved through a number of positive actions and initiatives, for example promotion of the historic environment will increase understanding and awareness.

KEY AIM 1 Increase understanding and awareness of heritage with improved accessibility

The historic environment is where we live, work and visit on a daily basis so it is personal to us all. In order to protect and enhance it, we need to ensure the management of change is based on a shared understanding of its value and importance. The council has a key role in enhancing the public's understanding, awareness and appreciation of the borough's historic environment and increasing physical accessibility to heritage. It has a responsibility to make sure expertise, knowledge, skills and resources are accessible to those who need it, and to develop new approaches and support existing means that assist improved understanding and management of historic assets.

The objectives to achieve this aim are:

- To ensure information on heritage assets is up-to-date, accurate and accessible
- To increase accessibility to the historic environment
- To support the development of learning, skills and training
- To support existing educational resources

KEY AIM 2 Implement positive action to manage and enhance heritage

Active management of the historic environment is an essential element in the protection and enhancement of heritage assets. There is a considerable range of positive action and intervention that the council can and has taken, ranging from heritage-led regeneration projects, offering grants for improvements to the historic environment, and enhancements to the public realm. Positive action is often essential to secure the future of heritage at risk and undertake planning enforcement to control unauthorised works to heritage assets. Often the council has a statutory duty or responsibility to take a lead role in these initiatives but does require the cooperation and support from others for a successful outcome.

The objectives to achieve this aim are:

- To ensure conservation areas are adequately protected and thoroughly understood
- To develop and adopt a list of local heritage assets
- To support and promote the development of characterisation studies
- To maximise opportunities to deliver heritage-led regeneration projects
- To implement high quality public realm improvements

- To regularly review planning policy relating to heritage matters to ensure the appropriate tools are available to guide decision taking
- To provide pro-active enforcement to secure improvements to the historic environment
- To address heritage at risk through appropriate management techniques
- To maximise funding opportunities for heritage projects and delivery of enhancements to the historic environment

KEY AIM 3

Ensure a partnership approach to care for our heritage

The borough's heritage resource is by its nature very fragmented and involves a wide ranging and diverse group of organisations, agencies, individuals and volunteer groups. The value of a partnership approach and collaborations to delivering the aims and objectives of this strategy is recognised and is vital to its success. It has been clear through the consultation process that the council is seen as an organisation that should play a central role in pulling together the interests of the heritage community.

The objectives to achieve this aim are:

- To maintain and develop positive working practices with heritage stakeholders
- To increase community engagement about heritage matters
- To ensure integrated and joined-up working within the council and between relevant local government partners

KEY AIM 4

The promotion and enjoyment of heritage

To complement the aims of increased understanding, improved management and collaboration the council has a fundamental role in promotion and developing a strong identity for the borough rooted in its history and heritage. The consultation process and evidence bases have suggested that the tourism market has the potential for future growth, incorporating heritage assets at a range of scales and interests. Coordination of initiatives to allow for discovery and exploration, advertising best practice and celebrating achievements in the historic environment will ensure for a high quality and enjoyable experience for people, groups and communities when interacting with the borough's heritage.

The objectives to achieve this aim are:

- To promote a positive image and identity of the borough to increase heritage related tourism
- To support the discovery and exploration of heritage
- To advertise best practice in dealing with heritage
- To celebrate and promote achievement in the historic environment

IMPLEMENTATION AND REVIEW OF ACTION PLAN

Delivery of the Action Plan will be dependent upon a strong relationship between the borough council and its key partners, alongside the ongoing and continued delivery of actions and statutory functions by the council's existing resource. Where appropriate working and steering groups will be instigated to develop and guide actions and initiatives. It is likely in some cases that extra council funding or resources may be required to fully realise and deliver actions and initiatives, and where this the case requests will be made to the relevant council committee.

There will be the need for regular monitoring of the Action Plan to determine the progress of the development and delivery of actions, therefore progress reports will be provided on a regular basis. Where actions are not being delivered or timescales are not being met there will be the need to adapt accordingly.

CONCLUSION

There is a clear steer from national legislation and guidance for local authorities to set out a positive strategy for the conservation and enjoyment of the historic environment. The council's Heritage Strategy provides the framework for how we understand, manage, enhance, care, integrate, promote and enjoy the borough's rich and diverse heritage in the immediate and long term future. It has reviewed the national and local heritage context, identified strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats for the service before identifying key aims and objectives to be achieved through the delivery of a detailed Action Plan. The strategy establishes the council's direction of travel to form the basis for scoping and prioritising the future work of the council's heritage resource, whilst ensuring that the service delivers the council's corporate ambitions of providing opportunities for people, places, and prosperity.

APPENDIX 1. CONSULTATIONS SUMMARY

BOROUGH BULLETIN SUMMARY

An article was placed in the summer edition of the Borough Bulletin asking for views on the drafting of a Heritage Strategy. The questions below were asked to generate thought.

- Conservation of historical sites and water courses
- Preserve and enhance historical buildings
- Attractive, appropriate signage and street furniture (classic style)
- Public realm improvements within Groby village centre
- Standard signage policy for the borough
- Information boards to share town's history e.g. Pugh's Paddock in Burbage
- Create small and beautiful spaces for sitting in or just enjoying e.g. Plot by St Mary's school opposite HSBC, create open green spaces; green corridors; 'nature corridors' for a diverse collection of native species; footpaths; and cycle paths
- Retain and sympathetically restore traditional factory sites
- Increased interpretation
- Support the Museum
- Grants should be made available for rural areas to display their knowledge by promoting the appropriate information to schools and children in their learning programmes and visitors and interested people now and in the future. More involvement with schools could help support curriculum work

General comments

There is a recognised need to develop the community and facilities in a sustainable way in order to provide improved services, access and opportunities for current and future generations. The identification, preservation and enhancement of heritage rich areas should not be undermined; it is significant in developing the wellbeing of the community and provides a valuable asset for education. In addition to this the natural environment provides a landscape for all members of the community to understand the past, present and future of the area in which they live, work and play. A shared positive understanding and experience of the local heritage supports the development of a healthy and united community across the generations.

STAKEHOLDER WORKSHOPS

Two stakeholder workshops were held over the summer of 2017, one at the Atkins building in Hinckley and one at Bagworth Community Centre. A range of stakeholders were invited, including Borough Councillors, Parish Council representatives, Neighbourhood Planning Group Representatives, local amenity and history societies, relevant borough and county council officers, and the members of the public who responded to the Borough Bulletin article. There were a total of 26 attendees at the Hinckley event and 19 attendees at the Bagworth event.

The workshops allowed discussion between all attendees (divided into groups) focused around a number of exercises, as summarised below:

Exercise 1. What is heritage?

Open question straight to the groups. Answers to this question are given below:

- Access to information and compiling of information historically

- Anything different in an area - local distinctiveness
- Anything from the past and present we want to take forward to the future
- Anything worth preserving
- Archaeological investigation and interpretation and material evidence
- Artefacts
- Buildings, structures, places that define what an area is
- Churches and the communities
- Cultural history
- Custodians and guardians
- Defines the character of an area or parish (its history)
- Definition of previous usage
- Doesn't have to be a physical thing
- Doesn't have to be aesthetically pleasing
- Don't need to go too far back in history to find heritage
- Heritage is always evolving
- Historic events
- Historic trades
- Historical features - architecture, industry
- Historical value and significance
- It is a living thing
- Landscapes - manmade and natural
- Landscapes telling a story
- Legacy
- Looking at events/structures that impact our lives today
- Material inheritance
- Memories (childhood and adult)
- More important the older you get
- Natural heritage - landscapes, beauty, forests, views and vistas
- Natural heritage (trees, open spaces etc.) are as important as buildings
- Need for preservation
- Not always evident
- Not only buildings - spaces, features, intangibles, views, landscapes, hand-me-downs, folklore
- Notable people
- Preserved sympathetically
- Recognises all aspects of the past - even negative things
- Reflection of an area - examples of its time
- Schools
- Something people value
- Something that is communal, social, physical, and historical
- Something that is educational
- Something that is valued by the community
- Something you want to preserve for the future
- Tradesman, workers
- Uncovering the past and its interpretation

- Understanding how a place has evolved
- Value of areas - danger of being lost
- Walking and recreation - need to be able to appreciate the landscape
- Working landscape - canals and railways etc.

Presentation given which identified two varying definitions of heritage – a concise one from Historic England and a complex one from ICOMOS.

Exercise 2. What is the heritage of the borough?

Presentation given on recognised heritage (i.e. designated) within the borough, the groups identified this and much more.

Exercise 3. What do you value about the heritage of the borough?

Presentation given with four categories of heritage value explained (evidential, historical, aesthetic, communal) and applied to the Atkins building as an example.

The groups then chose the following sites/buildings/heritage and attempted to apply the categories of value:

- Ashby Canal - three groups identified relevant values from all four categories
- Bosworth Hall Hotel - group identified all four categories of value
- Cock Inn - group identified all four categories of value
- Dixie Grammar School - group identified relevant categories
- Manor Farm, Desford - group identified all four categories of value
- Mining heritage - interesting choice as this industry is not particularly evident anymore. Consideration of negative associations with the industry and whether it should be heritage we seek to preserve
- One group briefly considered Ashby Canal and the Treaty of Wedmore. Four relevant categories identified for the canal, more difficult for the Treaty using this framework
- Queens Head, Barwell - group identified all four categories of value

Exercise 4. What are the issues and challenges for the heritage of the borough?

Presentation given on potential issues and challenges including identification and recognition, development pressure, lack of knowledge and awareness, lack of resource and lack of investment.

Each group identified issues and challenges for heritage, including:

- asset may fall into disrepair if funding is not available
- Borough Bulletin is too Hinckley focused, should include borough wide heritage stories
- challenges of statutory and legal protection measures applied to buildings
- changes in national considerations of what is considered special and warranting of protection
- conservation area appraisals out of date
- cuts to funding
- enforcement and planning challenges
- funding situation may be limited, e.g. Canal & River Trust
- heritage buildings are often community buildings, tied in to the social and economic structure of a settlement. This is lost with the building
- history of disasters in Hinckley, e.g. Regent Theatre - once an asset has gone it's gone
- identify those sites under threat
- keeping sites open and well used
- lack of intervention and enforcement
- lack of money and resources means heritage is under threat
- lack of parking for visiting or use, may conflict with the asset
- literature and guidance on assets is weak
- little control over agricultural practices having an impact on the landscape
- local voices can often be overlooked
- loss of community and social structure with loss of mining and quarrying heritage - multi-disciplinary issue?
- loss of heritage when sites are developed
- maintenance costs of assets (at all scales)

- many bodies that manage assets are public or charitable bodies, they rely on donations or government funding
- marketing of assets is weak
- much heritage has already been lost and it remains under threat
- names of areas and fields are rarely retained as a basic mitigation
- needs of an asset may have changed or evolved beyond its original use - not all buildings are adaptable or capable of change
- new development in proximity
- not everybody recognises statutory protection - needs to be valued by all. Threat of vandalism etc.
- owners are custodians, not all owners are aware of their responsibilities
- ownership of an asset by a large company who may not have heritage significance at forefront of business plan
- people are not given information about heritage easily or readily in the borough
- physical changes alter the landscape
- physical threats, e.g. traffic in Desford
- population growth may be a threat or an opportunity as more people may visit or become aware
- population growth, threat of development is not going to go away
- protection of places against development pressures
- some sites do not feel well protected due to ownership (e.g. Bosworth Hall)
- tourism and visitors is good but brings challenges, e.g. footpath erosion along the canal
- under appreciation of assets - recognise what is unique
- unlisted buildings and sites are vulnerable
- use of the building often follows national trends, e.g. pub closures

Exercise 5. How could the borough's heritage be better managed and enhanced?

Each group was asked to consider how the borough's heritage could be better managed and identify projects that would enhance and improve the historic environment. The following was identified and suggested:

- involve schools and provide access to history outside of the curriculum
- education in schools, engage children so they have a long-standing knowledge and interest that can be passed on
- inform young people - need to attract young and old
- record the memories of old and make them public
- utilise a range of media sources to make stories accessible - social media and Facebook
- make better use of volunteers
- encourage Parish Councils to employ or get volunteers and work together to share resources
- Use community activities as a resource - publications, local festivals, local events
- Heritage Groups, involving local people, heritage wardens
- make better use of the Borough Bulletin. Include all areas within the bulletin

- ask for more funding from a range of sources - Council (all departments such as Cultural Services), Hinckley BID, private sponsorship
- increase funding from local authority, grants, county council, lottery, DCF
- utilise full range of planning controls and enforcement, e.g. CPO of Bradgate Stables
- attempt to change attitudes
- seek better quality design
- rectify systematic errors in identifying and recognising
- maintain and keep a record of what is heritage
- Historic England and archaeological surveys do not always match - better communication between bodies
- neighbourhood plans can address the importance of heritage
- developers should engage the community to provide benefits
- traffic generated can be detrimental to historic areas
- work with parishes and local groups through the development process to acquire local knowledge which informs
- development should create or retain a sense of identity
- too relaxed "pro-development" has resulted in loss of heritage
- tell the story of the borough - link the assets
- additional control of agricultural processes
- recognise that tourism and heritage is a key opportunity for the borough
- raise awareness and encourage people to come to the borough
- increase publicity in areas of high footfall such as Hinckley town centre
- make use of banners
- improve public realm within centres so the environment is more attractive
- advertising and promotion
- get owners to give tours of their buildings to increase awareness and knowledge
- limited maintenance could focus on facades
- tours linked to the assets
- make more of Heritage Open Days
- sell merchandise across all historic venues
- increase marketing and literature
- develop local list
- co-ordination of groups
- Means of identifying and recognising - photographs, local historical information, trails
- put together an asset register of all aspects of heritage
- voluntary organisations assisting to ease resource burden
- use voluntary sector to carry out surveys audits and assessments (following training)
- devolve responsibilities to PC
- lack of resource means County/LPA/HE cannot always visit sites - use local groups to carry out this function
- better communication between tiers - LPA/PC/voluntary groups
- create neighbourhood areas to manage the borough's heritage
- embrace community projects to increase awareness, e.g. Bosworth links
- continual engagement to keep the ball rolling
- ensure new development does not threaten settlement identity through coalescence

- identify how an asset can form part of a new development - heritage can aid development as it is an attractive resource
- give priority to sites at risk and under threat
- have more dialogue with owners regarding their responsibilities. Help them understand their building
- refresh conservation area appraisals to a timetable
- provide a toolkit for history societies to identify local sites
- provide links to other organisations who hold records
- constructive and adaptive conservation - ensure buildings can be used but maintain their important features
- identify community assets
- ensure investment goes back into the community via section 106 monies
- develop a project that allows you to report issues with a heritage asset e.g. via a phone app or website
- have a feature village from the area in the Borough Bulletin
- Create a heritage sub-committee of the planning committee

Site specific enhancements and improvements:

- Ashby Canal
 - dealing with litter and dog mess
 - information boards, better information provision
 - ensuring towpath is visible and accessible
 - get the word out in schools
 - volunteer staffing, volunteer parties, use local skills
 - cycling accessibility
 - link with other paths and routes
 - make most of tourism in the urban area
- Ensure the EIP budget includes Hinckley and traditionally this has been seen as a Parish only budget
- Re-open Shackerstone to Nuneaton line (beyond Shenton)
- Provide a blue plaque trail
